

BORDE HILL GARDENS, HAYWARDS HEATH

Borde Hill was acquired by Colonel Robert Stephenson Clarke in 1893, he was the first owner to plant the gardens and woodlands. It is home to many rare shrubs including rhododendrons, azaleas, magnolias and roses. It is truly a great English garden with beautiful plants and stunning landscapes to wander around, or if you prefer you can take a stroll through the shady woodlands where there are many different trees. There is the Gardeners Retreat café which is situated in the old Peacock House and set in lovely surroundings. It is the perfect spot to relax and have a delicious cup of tea and cake or light lunch. Please note that Borde Hill is a cashless venue, only accepting card payments in the café, gift shop and plant nursery.
