

FAVERSHAM TOWN & ARTISAN CRAFT AND GIFT MARKET

We set off on our journey into the heart of Kent to the quaint town of Faversham. Faversham is mentioned in the Domesday Book and has many old medieval streets to wander through. It has been home to the oldest brewer in Britain, Shepherd Neame since 1698. By the 19th century it was the centre of the nation's explosive industry and manufacture of gunpowder. During our visit the Artisan market in the Alexander Centre is a must to see, with its wide selection of products including jewellery, candles, ceramics, homeware, artwork, beauty aids, food and fashion. It is the perfect place to find those different gifts for Christmas.
